

Squeeze Chutes Featured At This Year's MATE Show

This year the MATE Show will go beyond the tradition elements of a trade show and offer attendees a real working demo area for selected products. While this year the demo area will feature six to eight manufactures of Cattle Squeeze Chutes working live cattle, next year it will be something different. "It's an idea that we had as a way to feature a specific kind of product or piece of equipment each year that is applicable to farming or ranching," says General Manager Justin Mills. "Next year it may be ATV's or small tractors, skids steers or branding tables. There are a lot of products out there that people want to look at and compare side by side and this is a way that we can provide that opportunity."

This year's featured products will be Squeeze Chutes. So far, six manufactures have been booked to be on hand to demonstration their chute with live cattle. There will be two demonstration sessions offered each day. In addition to the squeeze chutes, the manufactures will also have the opportunity to display their maternity pens outside for attendees to get a hands-on look at all their respective features.

Other demonstrations that will take place in the same area as the squeeze chutes at different times will be a skid steer and zero turn radius lawn mower by Titan Machinery Rental. Titan is one of the fastest growing equipment companies that offer customers both lease and purchasing options for a multitude of equipment and products for farming, ranching, and construction.

Be sure to stop by the Demo Area located in the Small Bay of the Expo Center during this year's MATE Show. Times of all demonstrations will be posted for attendees.
